North White School Corporation
Information Technology Philosophy

North White Schools endorse the belief that well-educated learners provide the foundation essential to a democratic, information age society. The intelligent functioning of that society depends largely upon an adequate, capable citizenry. It is, therefore, vital that learners have access to knowledge, acquire knowledge, learn how to apply knowledge to resolve problems, and develop not only positive attitudes about themselves but also respect for the rights of others. North White Schools further endorse the belief that, through programs and services provided, schools must play a primary role in developing these qualities and characteristics in learners.

North White Schools endorse the belief that all learners are entitled to the opportunity for quality educational services which will enable learners to develop full potential to function as individuals and as citizens in a democratic, information age society. The educational services shall be provided efficiently, effectively, and conducted in a sensitive and disciplined environment. Further, they shall be implemented at a cost in keeping with the best principles of fiscal responsibility and with full accountability to the school community.

Technology Vision

The vision of North White Schools is to create an information-rich learning and working environment which will access converged channels of information through data networks, communication satellites, fiber optic lines, laser technologies, cable TV, modems, fax machines, microwave transmissions and other developing technologies.

Technology broadens the opportunities for the integration of curriculum throughout all subject areas. Textbooks no longer limit what is to be or can be learned. Learners will be encouraged to ask their own questions, seek answers in many places, consider different perspectives, exchange views with others and add their own findings to existing understandings. Those concerned with education will understand that technology resources; e.g., personal computers, tablets, smart phones, and Apple TV connected to interlinked networks spanning the globe can serve as powerful learning amplifiers.

Technology Mission Statement

It is the mission of North White School Corporation to promote and encourage greater productivity, communication and learning through the availability and use of information technologies.

Rules and Code of Ethics
Access to Electronic Information, Services, and Networks

Freedom of expression is an inalienable human right and the foundation for self-government. Freedom of expression encompasses the right to freedom of speech and the corollary right to receive information. Such rights extend to minors as well as adults. Schools facilitate the exercise of these rights by providing access to information regardless of format or technology. In a free and democratic society, access to information is a fundamental right of citizenship.

In making decisions regarding student access to Network, North White School Corporation considers its own stated educational mission, goals, and objectives. Electronic information research skills are now fundamental to preparation of citizens and future employees.

Access to the Network, and through it, the Internet, enables students to explore thousands of libraries, databases, bulletin boards, social media, and other resources while exchanging messages with people around the world. North White School Corporation expects that faculty will blend the available electronic informational resources throughout the curriculum and will provide guidance and instruction in its use. As much as possible, access from school to outside resources should be structured in ways, which point students to those resources that have been evaluated prior to use. While students will be able to move beyond those resources to others that have not been previewed by staff, they shall be provided with guidelines and lists of resources particularly suited to specific learning objectives.

Today's accessibility to computers and people all over the world, bring with it the availability of material that may not be considered to be of educational value. On a global network it is impossible to control all materials and information. Eventually, users may discover some information to be controversial. The educational benefits of this informational interaction on the worldwide network far outweighs; however, the negative reaction of improper material handling.

Outside of school, families bear the responsibility for the same guidance of Network and Internet use as they exercise with information sources such as television, telephones, radio, movies, and other possibly offensive media.

The district's Network-related guidelines and procedures are available for review by all parents, guardians, school employees, and other community members.
